STANDING OPERATING PROCEDURES

The operating procedure of Interdisciplinary Nineteenth-Century Studies (INCS) shall be determined by the Executive Committee in conformity with the Constitution.

Annual Meeting

Invitation to the society from institutions that wish to host the annual meeting are received by the President and acted upon by the Executive Committee. Each year at the regular meeting, the acceptance of an invitation for the year following will be announced.

A Program Committee of members from the host institution is responsible for securing and providing facilities for the annual meeting and reporting its arrangements to the Treasurer. The President appoints the Presiding officer of this committee, who in turn selects its other members.

At each annual meeting, the President appoints an auditing committee, consisting normally of two members, to examine the books of the Treasurer and report to the other members at the regular business session.

Anyone submitting a paper for possible presentation at the annual meeting, or serving as a moderator or participant in the sections, must be a dues-paid member of INCS for the current calendar year.

Nineteenth-Century Contexts

Members of INCS will receive Nineteenth-Century Contexts. The Treasurer is directed to pay, as requisitioned and documented by the Editor(s), supporting funds for NCC in an amount not to exceed the income from the journal publisher (Taylor and Francis). The Editor(s) shall consult with the Executive Committee on any changes in publication and editorial policies, but all editorial decisions are to be made by the Editor(s).

Election of Officers

Each year the Executive Committee will nominate candidates for officers and board members. There will be one nominee for each open position. The Treasurer will conduct an online election in which members will vote yes or no on each individual candidate.

Annual Dues

Annual dues for membership in INCS, including subscription to Nineteenth-Century Contexts, are $45.00 regular members, $50.00 joint members (to receive only one copy of each issue of NCC), and $20.00 for students and emeriti. Members attending the annual meeting of the society will be charged a registration fee sufficient to pay the expenses of the conference. The Executive Committee has the authority to raise dues as needed.

Annual Calendar

The membership year begins January 1 and shall include the annual meeting held that year.
